MISSING BRIDE FOUND IN HER FRIEND'S HOME

Lancaster Girl Worried Over Secret Marriage to Columbia University Student

Mrs. George I. Bushfield, wife of a wealthy Columbia University student, New York, who mysteriously disappeared from her home in Baltimore and was supposed to be in this city, has been found in the home of a friend at Canton, O.

Mrs. Bushfield's parents live in Lancaster. Her marriage to young Mr. Bushfield was secret and was not known to her relatives until after her disappearance on September 13.

Then the husband telephoned her parents at Lancaster and told them that their daughter, his wife, had left her uncle's home in Baltimore and could not be found.

Philadelphia was searched without avail. Then a clue leading to the West was uncovered. When Mrs. Bushfield, who is twenty years old, was finally found, she said she had run away because of worry over her secret marriage.

BREWERY TO SELL CLAIMS

Bergner & Engel Company Auctions 72 Unpaid Saloon Accounts

Seventy-two saloon proprietors are included in the list of unpaid accounts which the Bergner & Engel Brewing Company will auction off today in the public auction rooms at the Philadelphia Bourse.

The open accounts which are against "wet" dispensaries in all parts of the city amount to $382,000. They represent individual indebtedness to the brewery which runs as high as $20,000.

"We will brew beer," said George W. B. Fletcher, treasurer of the brewing company, "as long as the government permits us to continue in business. This city as you does not mean that we have given up all hope of a revival of business. It is merely an incident of business. We are going to sell the accounts because we wish to get them off our books."

The biggest debt on the list is that of Owen McGuldrick, Seventeenth and Market streets, who was one of the first saloon men arrested in the city for selling whisky after wartime prohibition went into effect on July 1.

Marine Charged With Hold-Up

Oscar Shonebrook, of 1418 North Hobart street, appeared before Magistrate Grellis today as witness against two sailors, William Mattison, twenty-one years old, and Russell Speck, twenty-one years old, and a marine, William Gibbs, twenty-two years old. He said he lost $100 last night and soon afterwards was stopped by Gibbs, who asked for some money. He gave Gibbs $1, he testified, and was then knocked down and searched. He had only fifty cents left, he said, which was overlooked by the men who attacked him. The two sailors were discharged on their denial of taking part in the attack. Gibbs was held in $500 bail on a charge of assault.

Gloucester Girl Hurt by Auto

Kathryn Ritz, eight years old, of 403 Middlesex street, Gloucester City, while crossing Broadway last evening, was run down by an auto of the Pusey & Jones shipyard. She suffered cuts and bruises on her head and body. She was treated at the office of Dr. R. T. Fox.

BRIDE'S FATHER FAILS TO PART NEWLYWEDS FOR TRANSIT COMPANY

Had Son-in-Law Arrested, but Court Decides Couple Should Not Separate

Frank Winesberger, of Twenty-sixth and Cumberland streets, appeared today before Magistrate Grellis in an effort to separate his daughter from the husband to whom she was married on Monday.

Love found a way, however, and the happy couple left arm in arm with the court's blessing and the hearty approval of the bride's mother.

Mary Winesberger, eighteen years old, was married to Edward A. Moss, a navy machinist, on Monday after an acquaintance of seven months, but approval of the match was of forthcoming when Moss presented himself at his bride's home Monday evening. In fact, Mr. Winesberger not only refused to admit him, but also caused his arrest for trespassing. Moss spent several hours in a cell.

Social relations between Mr. Winesberger and his son-in-law were considerably strained at the hearing today in spite of the court's formal introduction.

"I don't want him to have my daughter because I don't think he can support her," testified Mr. Winesberger.

"How about it?" asked the magistrate.

"I think I can support her," answered the bridegroom. "I'm a first-class machinist and I expect to get my discharge from the navy in two or three months."

At this point his mother-in-law testified that she, too, believed Moss could support her daughter.

"Seven months," said the magistrate.

"Huh! Seven months! Well, that's long enough," decided the magistrate and dismissed the case.

Walter B. Taylor, Ph. D., of Boston, has been added to the faculty. He will devote his time to teaching public speaking and English.

CAMDEN CONTINUES ZONE-FARE FIGHT

Public Utility Commission Hearing Scheduled for Tomorrow in Newark

FIGHT FOR FIVE-CENT FARE

Camden trolley boycotters today are looking forward to an early hearing on their complaints by the Public Utility Commission.

A request for a special hearing, argued by E. C. C. Bleakley, city counsel of Camden, was reluctantly granted by the commission, which is under heavy fire because of the zone fare system.

Mr. Bleakley will appear before the commissioners at Newark tomorrow. A time and place for the special hearing then will be fixed. Camden officials want the special hearing held in their own city.

While Mr. Bleakley was reopening the zone fare question, Mayor Ellis, of Camden, turned his attention on the zone trolley terminals, "bull-pens," as they are known to the public.

There are two of these terminals in Camden—at the Federal street ferry and at Broadway and Morgan street. Passengers leaving the cars form in lines and pass before cashiers, paying their fares as they leave the terminal.

New Mayor Ellis wants both terminals torn down. He has ordered the trolley company officials to show cause why they should not be. The builders of the terminal and street railway officials are to appear before Camden City Council at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

From the day it was built, the ferry terminal was branded as a nuisance by the public. It was declared that the structure was built contrary to the city's building laws. Persons passing through that terminal are compelled to dodge automobiles and other vehicles to reach the ferry.

Many shop windows in Camden contain signs with the wording, "A five-cent fare or nothing." The earnestness of the boycott, it is said, has not abated in the slightest. Even yesterday's rain did not drive the boycotters to the cars. They used jitneys instead.

According to City Council Bleakley, the Camden residents are going to fight the zone fare battle out "if it takes all winter."

The Public Service Corporation's trolley receipts have dropped alarmingly, he said. Instead of taking in from $7000 to $8000 a day, only about $1500 or $2000 is being collected.

HAZLETT MEETS HIS MATCH

Recorder of Deeds Detained for Ignoring Traffic Policeman

"I'm Hazlett," said "Smiling Jimmy," recorder of deeds, in a "you-can't-stop-me" tone of voice.

"I'm Jones," said the unperturbed traffic policeman at Broad and Chestnut streets, in an "Oh-yes-I-can" tone.

The traffic man won and the recorder of deeds was placed in custody and taken to City Hall, where his name was noted by the desk sergeant, but not on the slates where the names are generally registered.

It all happened last night. Jimmy and his son were due at the city committee headquarters, Eleventh and Chestnut streets, and, ignoring the traffic signal turned from Broad street into Chestnut against the patrolman's warning.

Politicians Buy Johnson Home

The home of the late John G. Johnson, 506 South Broad street, was sold yesterday to the Republican state committee for $50,000. It will now be the permanent headquarters of the state committee in this city. This spacious dwelling is two doors above the last residence occupied by Mr. Johnson at 510 South Broad street, where his famous art collection which he bequeathed to the city of Philadelphia is housed.

To Honor York Road Service Men

Campaigns will be launched in October by Jenkintown and Abington to obtain $10,000 with which to entertain former service men, erect tablets in their honor and conduct two field days. The program which Jenkintown has planned in honor of its service men will require approximately $7500, while $1000 of $2000 will be necessary to carry out the plans made in honor of service men of the Rydal-Roslyn-Abington district.

ARCHBISHOP CONFERS ON CHURCH WELFARE

Attends Meeting Called by Cardinal Gibbons at Catholic University

Archbishop Dougherty is in Washington today, where he is attending a meeting of the entire Catholic hierarchy of the United States at the Catholic University.

A call for this gathering was issued by Cardinal Gibbons in June. He acted as chairman of the general committee on Catholic affairs and interests.

The general purpose of the conference is to organize committees to study and work for the welfare of church and country, particularly along social and educational lines. It is discussing not only purely ecclesiastical questions, but social and educational problems involved in legislation under consideration by Congress and will formulate a uniform Catholic policy and co-ordinate as far as possible all diocesan activities.

The work of the conference will probably be carried on continuously by a permanent Catholic bureau to be established at the capital. Among the subjects tentatively suggested for consideration by Cardinal Gibbons are the raising of a fund for the Holy See, home and foreign missions, the Catholic University, education in general, the Catholic press and general legislation.

LIQUOR TRIALS CONTINUE

Judge Rules That Liquor May Be Sold for Medicinal Purposes

Federal prosecutions against saloonkeepers and bartenders for alleged violations of the wartime prohibition enactment continued before Judge Dickinson in the United States District Court in the Federal Building today.

Many interesting rulings are being developed, among the most interesting being that made by Judge Dickinson to the effect that the sale of whiskey for "medicinal" purposes does not subject a person to prosecution.

The judge made a statement in which he said he would subject any person or persons found guilty in the present series of trials to the full extent of the law.

TWO FOOD SALES DRAW HOUSEWIVES

Chestnut Street Store and Tacony Police Station Sell Government Surplus

"MEAT DAY" TOMORROW

Two big sales of government food, under the City Market Commission, are being held today, one at Gimbel's, Ninth and Chestnut streets, and the other at the Tacony police station.

Canned foods and bacon are being parceled out to housewives either in person or by proxy at Gimbel's. The sale will close tomorrow, but will reopen on Friday.

Tomorrow, however, is the government's biggest bargain day. Frozen meats, 30,000 pounds in all, and 25,000 pounds of bacon will be sold in the Fred P. Bell chain stores by the City Market Commission.

The prices per pound will be: Chuck, 12 cents; racks of mutton, 16 cents; saddles of mutton, 18 cents; legs of mutton, 22 cents; loins of pork, 28 cents; chicken, 32 cents, and bacon, 35 cents.

Tomorrow also, thousands of blankets, pieces of clothing and household articles will be sold at the Third Regiment Armory, Broad and Wharton streets, one of a chain of government retail stores to open all over the country.

Major Charles E. Jones, district surplus supply officer, said that it was quite possible that much of the government food had gotten into the hands of the packers and wholesalers, because they were offered on the bid principle before the system of selling to the public through the postoffices was established.
